IV

Additional Resources
Additioal Resources

Websites
In addition to websites at individual institutions, these are the premier websites for information on learning communities and freshman seminars.

http://learningcommons.evergreen.edu is the website of the National Learning Communities Project located at The Evergreen State College. This website includes an extensive bibliography, a national directory of learning communities in the United States, and various useful resources on getting started and sustaining learning communities and assessment.

www.sc.edu/fye is the site of the National Resource Center for The First-Year Experience and Students in Transition at the University of South Carolina. This website offers extensive information on their conferences, publications, and research. Especially notable are the Center’s national surveys of first-year programming.

www.brevard.edu/fyc is the website of the Policy Center on the First Year of College, which includes extensive information on assessment, research reports, and forums and institutes pertaining to the first year of college.

www.bgsu.edu/colleges/as/clc/rlch/ is the website of the Residential Learning Communities International Clearinghouse.

Written Publications
The following highly selective list provides a good starting place for those interested in reading more about learning communities.

Learning Community Rationale and Practice

Pedagogy

Learning Communities Implementation and Assessment

